Dear Sir or Madam,

I believe the DOJ has buckled to the very thugs it purports to protect U.S. citizens from. Microsoft has done nothing but bully its way to the top of the technology heap by infiltrating one segment of tech business sector after the other, infecting each with its own brand of assimilation or destruction.

In 'punishing' Microsoft by literally forcing it into a market in which it is yet have a stranglehold (the education market) you are in effect bowing to the power of the 'almighty' MS. This disease of a company needs to be broken up, disbanded or otherwise prohibited from entering and dominating other markets--not forced into ones they've yet to conquer.

Please know that I could easily write volumes on topics ranging from free competition, business ethics, the bastardization of corporate America right down to basic criminal acts and corporate responsibility. But, as you are no doubt busy weeding through hundreds of thousands of such letters, let me just cast my vote of disapproval at the job being done by the government.

Boo!
